

Pahokee cagers retain state title

PAHOKEE — The Pahokee Blue Devils retained the state class AA championship when they beat Monticello-Jefferson County 71-70 in triple overtime.

Walter Johnson dropped a lay-up into the hoop as the buzzer sounded to end the third overtime Saturday, March 12. The basket gave the Devils their second consecutive state basketball championship.

The game was tied 65-65 at the end of regulation time.

Pahokee led the game 29-26 at the end of the first half, and extended that lead to 49-44 by the end of the third period, but the Monticello-Jefferson County Tigers came back with a 21 point fourth quarter, while holding the Blue Devils to just 16.

The first three-minute overtime saw both teams go scoreless.

In the second overtime, the Tigers briefly captured the lead for the first time in the game. The Tiger's Shawn Starling sunk a seven foot-jumper with ten seconds left in the period to put the Tigers up 67-65.

Demetrius Brown responded quickly. Demetrius Brown hit a 25-foot jump shot to force the game into the third overtime.

That overtime saw the Devils, ranked number one through the season, clinch the title for the second time in as many years.

The Tigers went ahead 70-69 on a series of free throws, but Johnson put the game to rest as the buzzer sounded.

Last year, the Devils beat Vernon 68-55 to win the championship.

It's the first time in history that a class 2A team won two consecutive state titles.

"We always knew we had the talent to go all the way," said Coach Eddie Rhodes. "It was just a matter of getting them together."

He credited "team play and togetherness" with the team's success.

"We played good defense down the stretch," he added. "Defense and playing together was our best asset."

Rhodes said he was worried earlier in the week when the tournament started and teams from the south end of the state were regularly eliminated.

"I'm just happy we could do it," he said. "We're proud that we could bring a championship back to the south. Maybe it will open a few eyes and the people will realize that we have a good basketball program here."

He said he also hopes the championship will result in more publicity for Glades teams.

"We don't get as much attention and have our pictures in the papers as much," he said.

Rhodes couldn't compare the 1982 and 1983 championship teams other than to say the 1982 team may have had a little more offensive power than the new title holders.

He said he isn't thinking of next year yet.

"I need a rest," he laughed. "It's a long road, you know. From November through December, January, February and March. I'll just try to get some rest."

Glades pro plays classic

BELL GLADE — When the big names lined up at Lauderdale a couple of weeks ago for the Honda-Inverrary Classic, they were joined by not one but two golfers from the Glades.

Calvin Peete, a South Bay native, everybody knows about. But John Wright, a semi-professional at the city-owned golf course, doesn't have the name recognition Peete does.

Wright qualified for one of the four spots on the range in the field for South Florida Professional Golf Association members.

The four spots left open by a special invitee who qualified for the four open spots in the low qualifier shot a 71. Wright and three others tied at 72 for the other three spots and the alternate spot, forcing a playoff.

"I birdied the first hole and got in," said Wright.

The first day of the tournament, he shot a 72 and the second day he shot 81. That was last day. The cut-off was the low 70s.

Peete both left the tournament early.

"I left voluntarily though," said Peete.

"I wanted to keep playing." Peete has been working with the tour members to gain experience for the local golfers.

He played the tour the whole year in 1982 and Wright. "It's a good tour," said Wright. "I think the last tour tournament he didn't do 'too good' on the course. I think I made a little money."

"It's a tough. It really is," said Wright. "Our members get to practice on the course everyday, while we're working to be working, out here. I just get to hit a thousand golf balls a day."

He said several Glades residents

Tanner returned as South Bay mayor

SOUTH BAY — Donald E. Tanner was nominated by Vice Mayor Vernita Cox, and Commissioner Renwick Morris stated that he had no objections, but would like to see the mayor become active.

Tanner

was unanimously returned to the mayor's position by the South Bay City Commission Tuesday night in a meeting which took many bizarre twists.

"In the past year, Tanner was the vice mayor has been more active than the mayor," said Morris, adding that he thought Cox had been filling in for Tanner at most functions that required the mayor's attendance or participation.

Lake level falls to 17.9 feet

The water level in Lake Okeechobee is dropping at a rate of about an inch a day.

That's the word from Dick Slyfield, chief of operations for the South Florida Water Management District, who added Tuesday, March 15, that the lake level was down to 17.90 feet above mean sea level.

It's the first time since February that the lake level has been below 18 feet. The lake peaked at 18.20 feet March 1, the highest level the lake had been at since just after the 1947 hurricane, Slyfield said.

The district and the United States Army Corps of Engineers are making maximum discharges through the Caloosahatchee River in the southwestern section of the lake and the St. Lucie estuary on the eastern end of the lake.

The corps March 7 issued a bulletins notice because of the heavy discharges.

"The Corps of Engineers advises that due to the high water level of Lake Okeechobee and recent heavy unseasonal rains, heavy discharges are being made through all spillways on the Lake Okeechobee Waterway between Fort Myers and Stuart, Florida," the notice stated.

"These discharges result in highly turbulent waters downstream of the adjacent lock. Mariners are advised to use extreme caution when entering or departing the locks. Discharges will continue for several weeks until the water level recedes.

The large volumes of freshwater can kill the grasses, thus interrupting the food cycle, but Slyfield said the discharges will continue.

"We don't have much choice. Things are improving. We are getting the lake down, but we've got a ways to go," he said.

District officials said they hope to bring the lake down to the regulation 15.5 feet by June. The hurricane season starts June 1 and the district wants to be in a flood control mode then, according to officials.

District officials estimated in late February that the lake would peak at about 18.5 feet sometime around March 7.

Sewage hook-up limitations review set

BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade City Commission decided Monday night, March 14, that a policy must be developed to help it allocate a limited number of new sewage connections over the next year and a half.

A Department of Environmental Regulation moratorium has put a limit on the amount of new sewage that can be put into the Belle Glade system until the new waste water treatment plant is operating. That plant isn't expected to be constructed and functioning for another 18 months according to city officials.

Until then, the DER limited new connections to the city sewer system to a total of 20,000 gallons per day.

Once the city permits new hook-ups totalling 20,000 gallons, it can't approve any new hook-ups without DER's consent, or a change in the moratorium.

All new sewage hook-ups will be approved by the city commission until the moratorium is lifted. Tommy Strang told the commission Monday night.

"It's gonna be a little bulky for awhile," said Strang, adding, "I really feel that this thing (moratorium) is not gonna last for 18 months."

The city commission gave its approval to a request for a new connection that totals 1,200 gallons.

Richard Jones sought the new connection for a two-bedroom fourplex he plans to construct at 1209 West Avenue A.

The commission decided to delay a decision on permitting a connection to a bakery Homer Hand proposes to construct at 1600 West Canal Street South.

"We need housing a lot worse," said Commissioner George Goforth.

The original proposal for the bakery included connecting to two bedroom apartments, three one-bedroom apartments and the bakery to the sewage system. The total sewage flow would have been 3,200 gallons.

According to Building Inspector Barry K. Underwood, Hand agreed to seek connections for just the bakery, leaving the existing apartments on a septic tank, to save the city 1,200 gallons flow.

The apartments and the planned bakery would be in the January Grocery building. Mayor Thomas L. Altman questioned whether a bakery would require a sewage flow of 2,000 gallons, and Underwood replied the bakery would include a kitchen.

"Well, there are kitchens and there kitchens," said Altman. He suggested the city determine if a bakery would require that large a sewage capacity by finding out what similar establishments in town require.

"What better way to determine what a bakery actually uses than to take a bakery and measure its water usage?" Altman asked.

"That's one way of doing it," replied Underwood. "I've always gone by the schedule."

"It's never been so critical before," Altman said.

Water and sewage use are tabulated in a schedule that Underwood said he relied on in the past.

Altman urged the commission to consider adopting a policy to guide it in issuing permits for the sewage connections, or Equivalent Residential Connection (E.R.C.s), over the next year and a half.

"We're getting into something that's gonna be very important over the next 18 months, the way we allocate these E.R.C.s," he said. "We're looking at doing out a very valuable commodity, at least over the next 18 months."

He added he wasn't sure a bakery was worth allocating a tenth of the city's permitted new connections during that period.

The capacity the DER established could be increased as units now serviced by city sewage are destroyed and go off the lines, according to Strang.

City Community Development Director Remar M. Marvin said the limitation could have a limited impact on community development projects, but added that any new connections made necessary because of community development projects would be minimal.

He said he also expected several units could be destroyed and taken off the sewage system during the next 18 months, thus increasing the city's capacity for new connections.

He added that he expected most community development efforts in the next year and a half to be in rehabilitation and reconstruction.

City annexes lots, county may object

BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade City Commission decided to annex and rezone two lots from the county, despite county objections to the rezoning, Monday night, March 14.

The lots, owned by Seminole Sugar Corporation, lie to the south and southeast of Glades General Hospital.

One of the lots will be zoned R2 residential and the other will be zoned a combination of R1 residential and B2 business.

According to state law, the city may not change the zoning of land annexed from the county without the county's consent. Staff members at the county level have objected to the proposal to rezone the lots in the past, Mayor Thomas L. Altman said.

If the objections continue, the city will have to wait two years until it can rezone the property.

"The county could conceivably object to that in the new zoning, or it may not," said Altman.

The city commission passed the annexation on second reading Monday. It had passed the annexation on first reading last year, but had delayed the second reading until talks with the county were exhausted.

"Well, we were hoping to work out some sort of solution but just haven't been able to," said Altman.

City Attorney said that the commission's adoption on second reading will start "the clock on two years running" if the county doesn't lift its objections to the rezoning.

Altman said Seminole Sugar is aware of the county's objections and the limited availability of sewage connections over the next 18 months.

Questions should have been answered

The Pahokee City Council last week voted to drop a planned investigation into allegations concerning the city building department and city building inspector.

It shouldn't have.

The allegations that Building Inspector Phelix Slonaker had mishandled the building department and his job should be investigated to determine if there is any truth behind them.

Slonaker's claims that his attempts to do his job properly were stifled by council members seeking to protect the interests of associates should also be checked.

We still believe that Slonaker and the city council members should be considered innocent until, and unless, proven guilty, but some of the allegations were serious and concerned the safety and welfare of the public.

The public has right to know if the servants that work for it are doing their jobs properly and protecting the public's interest.

The city council has a duty to make sure the facts are available to the public. We think the city council's decision to drop the investigation because any past misdeeds are now just "water under the bridge," was a bad one.

If a pattern of deliberate mishandling was revealed by the investigation, those responsible, be it the building inspector or the city council, should have had to take the heat.

If no deliberate mishandling was uncovered, the people would be able to rest with the knowledge that their elected and unelected city officials are functioning properly and are concerned with their welfare.

The council members should remember that they are elected to serve and represent the citizens of the city. Protecting the citizens' interest is probably the most important part of their jobs on the council.

The council's decision to drop the investigation reflects an apparent lack of concern for the safety and well-being of the people who live in Pahokee.

We also wonder if any members of the council had personal reasons to see the investigation dropped.

We urge the council to reconsider and hire an outside, independent investigator. It can't hurt Pahokee to clear the air, and it can't hurt Slonaker or the council members if they acted properly.

AILSA DEWING

"AND WHAT NOT"

A hobgoblin sitting on my shoulder

There is a hobgoblin who sits, or should sit, on the shoulder of anyone who strings words into sentences for fun and profit. His job is to nag, nag, nag. "You spelled that wrong." "That doesn't sound right." "Write that again, it's too wordy."

When the wordsmith isn't writing, the hobgoblin is supposed to curl up for a nap inside the typewriter. But not mine! Wouldn't you know I would pick a hyperactive motormouth who thinks that he and I together can clean up the pollution in the English language, rid society of crimes against grammar, and make our streets safe for children learning to speak their mother tongue?

I can't even drive down a city street without hearing the traffic signs. "Slow children playing," he cackles in my ear. "You wouldn't think they'd want to advertise that they have slow children."

He's at his pestiest watching TV news broadcasts. He likes "not too distant future" inevitably launches a tirade: "How do you measure the future, considering it's about to begin with the next nanosecond? When does the 'distant future' start — next week, next month, or in year 2003? When does the close future end? How come nothing's ever happened in the not too distant past?"

He frets because weather persons never fail to mention skies are overcast but don't tell us when they're undercast.

When I read a book, he reads over my shoulder, constantly interrupting my train of thought: "There's an expression I hate, 'little old ladies or medium size middleaged men.'"

"Will you shut up!" I say. "Would you rather I shut up, down, off, or out?" he giggles, adding, "That's a pointed question to which I expect a sharp reply."

"More than escapes" also rings his bell. He thinks the absence of miracles should get equal mention. "Write," he goads me, "that unmiraculously the driver did not escape injury and got zonked, cloppered, and zapped."

Even when I'm not reading, writing, or watching TV, he hangs around trying to start something with my subconscious. At a recent council meeting, a commission moved to table the question, "There was nothing wrong with the question," Hobgoblin mumbled. "It's the stupid answers they should table."

He's even given to waking me up early to share an observation. The other morning, he nudged me awake with "Are you suffering a hangover?"

"Of course not," I snarled.

"Good," he replied, "then you can enjoy being hungover."

Other writers are allowed to refer to shining examples. I'm not. "Hans in the Dell a dull example," he advised. When I wrote that someone "was going to argue," he fell off my shoulder laughing. "Flat out and face down," he guffawed. "What kind of position is that to take in an argument?" I belted him with my dictionary. "Change that to read bashed," he gasped, before passing out.

Somewhat I managed to get through this column with no help from Hobgoblin, but here he comes now . . .

"What do you mean by 'the other' morning. Have we only had two mornings? 'Train of thought.' My, my, aren't we clever. Get out of here with 'weather person.' You're trying to be cute. Why don't you change . . ."

If you haven't mailed your '82 income tax
there's still time to cash in on a tax shelter of your own!

Cash in on one of Uncle Sam's best tax shelters. You have until April 15th (longer if you have an extension) to open your own tax shelter — a Bank of Pahokee Individual Retirement Account. Invest up to $20,000.00 ($4,000.00 if you and your spouse both work) regardless of other retirement benefits.

You get to take the deduction now, on your 1982 income tax, and your future investments plus the interest your savings earn is tax deferred until you retire, when your tax rate will probably be much less.

Want to know more about your own tax shelter? First, hold up on that tax return, then see a Bank of Pahokee banker who can show you how to cash in on your own tax shelter — a Bank of Pahokee Individual Retirement Account.

Body found in freezer in ditch

SOUTH BAY — Detectives from the Glades substation of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of a body found in a freezer in a drainage ditch south of South Bay earlier this week.

The bullet-riddled body was found Monday at about noon by workmen who were

removing the freezer

from the ditch.

The freezer was closed and sealed and placed in a drainage ditch three miles south of South Bay, just west of U.S. 27.

The badly decomposed body was shot several times, according to the Sheriff's Office release.

An autopsy was performed Tuesday, March 15 by the Palm Beach County Medical Examiner's Office in West Palm Beach.

Kraft is salad dressing for Fest

BELLE GLADE — What's the recipe for the world record tossed salad?

According to the 1983 Black Gold Jubilee press kit, the salad of record proportion should include

10,125 pounds of iceberg lettuce; 500 pounds each of endive, escarole, Napa, Chinese cabbage, Boston lettuce, leaf lettuce, bib lettuce and radicchio; 200 pounds of celery and 300 pounds of tomatoes, torn, chopped and tossed in a salad bowl measuring 24 feet in diameter and four feet deep.

The recipe adds that customers are to add

their favorite dressing and enjoy.

That favorite dressing

will probably be made by Kraft, this year.

The Black Gold Jubilee last week committed itself to Kraft after considering two other salad dressing manufacturers.

According to Committee Chairman

Rupert "Bubba"

Mock, Jr., Kraft will supply 100 cases of dressing during the two days of the festival in April.

That adds up to 112

gallons which will be available.

Kraft is apparently willing to invest up to $15,000 in the festival in dressing and publicity, according to Mock.

The company is sending 50 aprons to the festivals for the services, and professional photographs to capture the event on film.

Information released

by Kraft to the press is expected to reach

between three million and 10 million readers.

Rashley qualifies in Pahokee

PAHOKEE — George Walter Rashley, Jr., earlier this week became the second person to qualify for a spot on the Pahokee municipal election ballot May 3.

Rashley, 23, is running for the seat held by Councilman George Tillis.

Tillis said he hasn't made up his mind whether he's going to run for re-election.

That was his slogan during his unsuccessful bid for a council seat in the crowded 1982 race.

Rashley said he would like to see the council take a more active role in helping the city keep businesses located in Pahokee and in attract- ing new business.

That was his slogan during his unsuccessful bid for a council seat

in the crowded 1982 race.
